2010 RABIES ANNUAL SUMMARY

Wadsworth Center Rabies Laboratory

New York State Department of Health

Robert J. Rudd

There were 499 rabid animals diagnosed at the Wadsworth Center laboratory in 2010, representing 7.5% of all animals tested. This total includes 250 raccoons, which was 26.1% of all raccoons examined (positivity rate), 85 skunks (43.8%); 68 bats (2.5%); 43 cats (3.2%); 31 gray fox (34.0%); 6 bovine (8.5%); 5 woodchucks (6.5%); 3 red fox (4.6%); 2 horses (5.0%); 2 coyotes (22.2%); 1 deer (2.5%) and 1 sheep (7.7%).

Of concern in 2010 was the increased number of rabid cats found in the State. Raccoon rabies entered into New York State in 1990. As a result we have seen an increase in the spillover of raccoon rabies variant into cats and other domestic animals. Of the 38,022 cats tested for rabies at the Wadsworth rabies lab since 1990 there has been 556 cats found to be rabid. This is a 1.5% positivity rate over this 21 year period. In 2010 the positivity rate for cats was 3.2%. All of the 2010 rabid cats were infected with the raccoon rabies variant. Of the 43 rabid cats diagnosed in 2010; 22 were listed as wild or feral and 6 were identified as owner unknown; 14 were juvenile and 29 were adult; 25 were identified as having bitten a human and none of the rabid cats were identified as having a current rabies vaccination.

The Wadsworth Center's rabies laboratory tested 6,642 animals in 2010. This number is 2,138 specimens below the average submissions for the previous 10 year period and 633 specimens fewer than submitted in 2009. Raccoon rabies was reported in 48 and bat rabies was reported in 31 New York counties in 2010. In 2009 raccoon and bat rabies was reported in 46 and 35 counties respectfully.

The specimens tested included 4,455 wild animals (67.2% of total submissions) and 2,183 domestic animals (32.8%), with 51 species of animals represented. These included 2,866 bats (43.1% of all animals tested), 1,331 cats (20%), 954 raccoons (14.4%), 651 dogs (9.8%), 194 skunks (2.9%), 208 rodents and lagomorphs (3.1%), 157 fox (2.4%), 70 cattle (1.0%), 41 deer (0.6%), 40 horses (0.6%) and 35 other wild species (0.5%). In 67.9 % of all animals tested there was either a bite to a human or human contact with saliva or nervous tissue.

Of all bats tested in 2010, 2.4% were found to be infected with rabies virus. There were 2,537 big brown bats examined and 61 of those were positive, resulting in a 2.4% positivity rate for that species. Rabies was detected in 3 of 274 little brown bats examined (1.1% positivity), 2 of 12 silver-haired bats (16.6%), 0 of 16 red bats (0%), 2 of 5 Hoary bats (40%) and 0 of 16 bats unidentified to taxa. Of the 68 rabid bats tested in 2010, 39 (57.3%) had contacts with humans. However, of all of the 2866 bats tested in 2010, 1,726 had contact with humans and were found to be negative for rabies. This testing prevented unnecessary post exposure prophylaxis and conserved the costly and limited supply of rabies vaccine and immune globulin.

Of concern over the past five years is the disease affecting bats known as White Nose Syndrome. This disease affects predominantly bats of the genus Myotis (little brown bats). Between 1999 – 2008, the rabies lab tested an average 952 little brown bats per year. In 2009 that number dropped to 483, and in 2010 the rabies lab tested 245 little brown bats. This drastic drop in Myotis submissions for rabies testing is evidence of the steep decline in the number of these bats found in New York State.

During 2009 the rabies diagnostic laboratory at the New York City Department of Health and Mental Hygiene examined 551 specimens, including 339 raccoons, 87 cats, 51 dogs, 21 opossum, 38 bats, 11 skunks, 2 coyotes, 1 beaver, and 1 groundhog. Among these animals 145 (26.3%) were positive for rabies, including 138 raccoons, 3 bats, 1 coyote, 1 skunk, 1 opossum and 1 cat. An epizootic of rabies in raccoons, focused in Central Park, resulted in the large jump of positives in New York City for 2010.

The Wadsworth Center rabies laboratory tested 1,052 human sera for rabies virus neutralizing antibody. These tests generally are performed to determine the need for booster vaccinations for individuals wishing to maintain current rabies pre-exposure vaccination status. The laboratory also examined 1,815 raccoon sera for rabies antibody in support of wildlife oral rabies vaccination programs (ORV).

The laboratory performed 82 virus-variant typing assays using a panel of monoclonal antibodies directed against the rabies virus nucleocapsid protein, to aid in the study of rabies epizootiology in the State.
